

Call for Proposals

Seed Funding for Cooperation with the Global South 2022

The Technische Universität Berlin launches the call for applications for Seed Funding for Cooperation with Partners in the Global South 2022.

The Seed Funding for Cooperation with Partners in the Global South seeks to attract and support researchers at the TU Berlin in initiating and further strengthening new and/or existing research projects and collaboration with partners in the Global South responding to global challenges. Applicants can submit their short project ideas and apply for funding in order to initiate or deepen their collaboration with partners in the Global South (max. 10.000 EUR). The activities funded by TU Berlin should aim at the preparation of one or several proposals for third party funding. We particularly welcome proposals that involve junior researchers at TU Berlin and at partner universities in the Global South.

Collaborations and project sketches which address the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as well as TU Berlin's Strategy on Global Responsibility are of paramount interest under this TU funding scheme:

In line with the overall vision of the Technische Universität Berlin for Global Responsibility and taking into account its commitment for sustainable and excellent research and innovation, the Seed Funding for Cooperation with Partners in the Global South is available for TU-researchers who plan to initiate a project and to develop a project proposal, with special regards to objectives such as capacity building, joint collaboration and development of research and teaching with partners in the Global South, as well as the creation of knowledge/ or transfer of knowledge and technologies.

With regards to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development of the United Nations, the Technische Universität Berlin would like to encourage and support research initiatives of TU-researchers that respond to the urgent need of sustainability and international transdisciplinary collaboration. The 17 Sustainable Development Goals of the international community (SDGs) outline several global challenges, such as clean energy, climate change, industry and innovation, quality education, global health, responsible consumption, sustainable resource management, and many more which correspond to the expertise of researchers at the TU Berlin.

Applications will be examined and selected by an academic commission, headed by Prof. Dr.-Ing. Christine Ahrend, 1st Vice President for Research, Appointment Strategy, Knowledge & Technology Transfer at TU Berlin.

We are looking forward to receiving your applications (application deadline 1 March 2022).

Objective

Encourage the initiation of new collaborative projects with the Global South and with a focus on sustainability, capacity building, joint collaboration, development of research and teaching, knowledge creation and the integration of junior researchers. The seed funding promotes and encourages transdisciplinary research on global challenges and sustainable solutions, as well as networking and exchange between researchers of TU Berlin and partners from the Global South (Higher Education Institutions, research centers, NGOs or public institutions; companies can be included as associate partners).

The activities funded by TU Berlin should aim at the preparation of one or several proposals for third party funding. We particularly welcome proposals that involve junior researchers at TU Berlin and in the Global South.
